SECTION 5. TERMS OF REFERENCE

1. Project Background

The Republic of Mauritius constitutes the islands of Mauritius and Rodrigues, 560 kilometres east of Mauritius, the 2 outer islands of Agaléga, 1065 km to the north, and the archipelago of Cargados Carajos Shoals (Saint Brandon), 430 km to the northeast. Even though the pressure of anthropogenic activities, natural calamities inclusive of climate change have increased exponentially, the island remains as one of the jewels in the world with respects to biodiversity and natural resources and is recognized as a Global Biodiversity Hotspot. The state harbours several flora and fauna species (terrestrial and marine) which are unique to the country or the region.

Around 46 percent of all higher plants, 80 percent of birds, 94 percent of reptiles, and 40 percent of bat species in the country are endemic. An extensive reef system surrounds the islands, with 290 marine families comprising 1,656 species, 50 of which have economic importance including fish, molluscs, lobsters, and shrimps. Like many small island states, Mauritius is dependent on the healthy functioning of both its terrestrial and marine ecosystems for its economic development and social wellbeing.

Henceforth, recognizing that invasive alien species represent one of the primary threats to biodiversity, and that risks may be increasing due to increased global trade, transport, tourism and climate change, the Republic of Mauritius intends to effectively implement Article 8(h) of the Convention of Biological Diversity along with the other International instruments, such as the International Plant Protection Convention, and relevant international organizations such as the Office International des Epizooties, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, the International Maritime Organization, the World Health Organization and other international organizations that develop relevant standards and agreements.

The objective of the project is to safeguard globally significant biodiversity in vulnerable ecosystems through the prevention, control, and management of invasive alien species (IAS) in the Republic of Mauritius by:

- a) Creating the policy and institutional frameworks needed for effective prevention, control, and management of IAS to secure ecosystem goods and services under pressure from IAS. It builds the right enabling environments (policies, legal frameworks, institutional coordination) for mainstreaming IAS prevention, control, and management.
- b) Establishing a multi-tier strategy for effective tackling of IAS - The strategy includes improved preventative measures at points of entry into the country and inter-Islands, early detection, and rapid response programmes to eradicate new incursions. It also includes improved capacity to upscale proven methodologies for managing IAS on a landscape level.
- c) Founding an up-to-date information for raising public awareness and enhancing understanding of the centrality of IAS programmes for protecting biodiversity, ecosystems, economy, and livelihoods. It ensures that knowledge management supports monitoring, assessment and learning and forms the basis for adaptive project implementation, achievement of results, impacts, and upscaling of experiences in the Republic of Mauritius and in the region.

One of the key outputs of the project is the proclamation of Mourouk Valley as a Protected Area.

Mourouk Valley is situated in the south east of Rodrigues Island. The valley containing Cascade Mourouk is flanked by two smaller valleys, one on each side. Although the three valleys are degraded, the more inaccessible slopes are still rich in native species, possibly making this the richest of the south-facing valleys. In the middle (Cascade) valley the only known individual of Gouania laxiflora is found in association with Diospyros diversifolia, Terminalia bentzoe, Pleurostyliia putamen, Eugenia rodriguensis, Scutia myrtina, Asparagus umbellulatas, Cassine orientalis, and Ficus spp. (F. rubra and F. reflexa). Patches of Lobelia vagans grow in accessible places next to the cascade, while above it two very old Polyscias rodriguesiana occur in association with Dracaena reflexa.

The middle cascade valley contains rare Foetidia rodriguesiana, Terminalia and Sideroxylon galeatum, which grow in association with Mathurina penduliflora and two Hibiscus liliiflorus, the only trees of this species known in the wild. Some rare species may grow at the head of the valley, surrounded by very steep, weathered cliffs, too dangerous to prospect adequately. Scientists collected Dombeya rodriguesiana from this locality in 1956. It possibly still exists in the valley. The small valley east of the main cascade valley contains at least eight Hyophorbe verschaffeltii palms. This valley opens up next to Mont Cheri, where occasional Terminalia, Pleurostyliia, Diospyros, Camptocarpus sphenophyllus and a large localized population of Carissa spinarum are found. The three valleys of Cascade Mourouk are forested, generally, varying from isolated trees to an almost complete canopy. Invasions by Litsea glutinosa, Lantana camara, and Furcraea foetida are common in Mourouk Valley.
