

Question	Answer
Is there an interest in pursuing countries in the areas of Just Transition and Impact assessment of subnational and/or non-state actions and will the proposal need to include any reference to specific countries?	The proposal should be generic and cover all the requirements in the CFP. The proposal may include the organization's specific country and/or technical experience and other relevant relations to countries to demonstrate strengths and areas of expertise. All components listed on page 3 of the CFP are of interest, including Just Transition and Impact assessment of subnational and/or non-state actions. Please also include in the proposal the maximum number of project modules your organization has the capacity to implement before the end of 2025 and also indicate any economies of scale should your organization be awarded more than one country module.
Is there a possibility to extend the deadline beyond 8 March?	Currently there are no plans to extend the CFP, but we will post on UNGM if the CFP is extended.
Do we need to formally express interest for the submission?	There is no need to formally express interest for the submission. The proposal should be accompanied by Annex 1 - Declarations available under the Documents tab in UNGM, which needs to be duly signed by a representative of your organization.
We are submitting the proposal as a consortium rather than an individual organization. For the reference letters that demonstrate applicant's experience, do we need reference letters for the consortium lead organization only or for each organization that is the member of the consortium?	Reference letters should preferably be included for all consortium partners when and if the references are considered relevant to the scope of the CFP. As a minimum requirement, project reports and/or reference letters for the latest two non-UNOPS projects should be included for the consortium lead.
The CFP states that the proposal submission package should include Annex 2: Protection from sexual exploitation and abuse (PSEA) implementing partner self-assessment, however, there was no template file provided for Annex 2.	This was an oversight on our end. The correct spreadsheet has been added under the Documents tab on 28 February. Applicants need to fill out the first tab only.
Should the budget be submitted per project module?	Yes, the budget should be for one project module (max. USD 108,000), and any economies of scale with more than one module should be included if applicable.

How should the project teams be presented if the submitting organisation has a wide range of technical experts, but the experts assigned to a country project module will depend on the country assigned (language) and components of the work plan (technical expertise)?

In this case you may prepare the budget based on your 'personnel' categories (i.e. senior expert, junior expert, M&E, communications, project management, etc.) and submit a list of team members, their qualifications and personnel category as a new tab in the budget document.
