The final evaluation will combine the weighted scores of both technical and financial proposals to come up with a cumulative total score.

Please note that WHO is not bound to select any bidder and may reject all proposals. Furthermore, since a contract would be awarded in respect of the proposal which is considered most responsive to the needs of the project concerned, due consideration being given to WHO's general principles, including the principle of best value for money, WHO does not bind itself in any way to select the bidder offering the lowest price.

WHO may, at its discretion, ask any bidder for clarification of any part of its proposal. The request for clarification and the response shall be in writing. No change in price or substance of the proposal shall be sought, offered or permitted during this exchange.

NOTE: Individual contact between WHO and bidders is expressly prohibited both before and after the closing date for submission of proposals.

- e) Not award any contract at all.

WHO has the right to eliminate bids for technical or other reasons throughout the evaluation/selection process. WHO shall not in any way be obliged to reveal, or discuss with any bidder, how a proposal was assessed, or to provide any other information relating to the evaluation/selection process or to state the reasons for elimination to any bidder.

NOTE: WHO is acting in good faith by issuing this RFP. However, this document does not oblige WHO to contract for the performance of any work, nor for the supply of any products or services.

At any time during the evaluation/selection process, WHO reserves the right to modify the scope of the work, services and/or goods called for under this RFP. WHO shall notify the change to only those bidders who have not been officially eliminated due to technical reasons at that point in time.

WHO reserves the right at the time of award of contract to extend, reduce or otherwise revise the scope of the work, services and/or goods called for under this RFP without any change in the base price or other terms and conditions offered by the selected bidder.

WHO also reserves the right to enter into negotiations with one or more bidders of its choice, including but not limited to negotiation of the terms of the proposal(s), the price quoted in such proposal(s) and/or the deletion of certain parts of the work, components or items called for under this RFP.

Within 30 days of receipt of the contract between WHO and the successful bidder (the “Contract”), the successful bidder shall sign and date the Contract and return it to WHO according to the instructions provided at that time. Annex 1: Detailed Terms of Reference

1. Purpose of the APW

The purpose of this contract is to assess, identify and report on water and sanitation technology options in Health Care Facilities available in the Western Pacific Region with the following specific objectives:

- Identify novel or emerging technologies that may offer new and more effective solutions for Water and Sanitation in HCF
- Summarize currently available Water and Sanitation Technologies based on published and unpublished technology assessments, technology and innovation reports, case studies, best practice reports and other relevant sources
- Conduct gap analysis on the adoption and implementation of appropriate water and sanitation technology in the Western Pacific Region.
- Produce recommendations on the most appropriate and sustainable water and sanitation technology options for Member States in Western Pacific Region.
- Recommend and facilitate implementation of actions required to obtain consensus on the appropriate and scalable WASH technology recommendations for Member States in WPR including convening consultative meetings and presentations.
- Identify Member States for adoption of recommended WASH technologies with donor funding.

2. Background

Water and sanitation infrastructures are fundamental to provision of quality and safely managed health services. The needs are greatest in health care facilities to achieve equitable access to safe water and sanitation¹.

Smart investment in drinking water mitigates, reduces cost and builds resilience to climate change¹. Informed planning regarding choice of water sources and infrastructures are critical for longer-term sustainability of technology². Several studies shows that climate resilient water supply technologies are cost-effective³⁴⁵⁶ and the benefit is that they are often 'no regrets' investment. Between 2021 and 2030, an estimated US$6.5 billion to $9.6 billion is needed to achieve full coverage of basic water, sanitation, hygiene, and waste services at public health facilities in the 46 least developed countries (LDCs)⁷. Robust WASH technology requires innovation, experimentation, and future-proofing.

Emerging technologies, ways of working and business models can significantly improve water resources and sanitation development and management. Sharing and disseminating research and technologies will provide an enabling environment for new, sustainable solutions to achieve full coverage of WASH services. Focus should be put on scaling up best practices and relevant innovations to countries, regions and globally, and on enabling innovative methods, accessible and disruptive technologies and sidelined ecological/traditional approaches to accelerate progress on water and sanitation and benefit those left behind.

Therefore, providing water and sanitation technology options will be undertaken to inform decision-making on appropriate technology using concepts of technology assessment. Under this APW, comprehensive water and sanitation technology assessment will be prepared. Additionally, provisional list of proposed technology will be produced with endorsements from Members States of Western Pacific Region.
