

Conducting National Assessment of UNESCO's Internet Universality Indicators in Fiji, Solomon Islands, Tonga, Vanuatu, and Tuvalu

Q&A

Q: Can the "offeror" also be an individual person affiliated with an institution, but acting in their personal capacity, or has to be a firm/institution?

A: Given the scope of the research, the invitation is extended to firms and research teams. The assessment of the indicators in each country may involve between 5 and 8 researchers with varying levels of expertise and experience. Individuals, who are interested in applying, should ensure they have a registered legal entity and meet the requirements outlined in the TOR. The selected entity will be required to provide a bank statement and proof of their legal status.
