Annex 1: Detailed Terms of Reference

1. Purpose of the APW

The World Health Organization Philippines is looking for an individual or institution contractual partner who will provide technical assistance for designing the adaptation of the digital Facility Readiness and Essential Service Availability Assessment and Reporting for Adolescent Health (FReSAAR) tool, including formulation of a Health Dashboard for the Joint Programme on Accelerating the Reduction of Adolescent Pregnancy (JPAP) in Southern Leyte and Samar.

2. Background

In the latest Young Adult Fertility and Sexuality Survey (YAFFS), Eastern Visayas ranked as the second region with highest adolescent pregnancy tied with BARMM, only next to Davao. As per Field Health Services Information System (FHSIS), there is an increasing trend among adolescent pregnancy among 10-14 years old while an erratic decrease from ages 15-19 years old.

On 20 February 2023, the UN agencies (WHO, UNFPA and UNICEF) with funding support from the Korean International Cooperation Agency (KOICA), Philippines recently launched the Joint Programme on Accelerating the Reduction of Adolescent Pregnancy in Southern Leyte and Samar 2023-2026. This aims to reduce the number of adolescent pregnancies in the country with focus on the provinces of Samar and Southern Leyte in the Eastern Visayas region. The project will implement activities under three main outcomes:

1. Improved access to quality integrated sexual and reproductive health information and services in project sites
2. Raised self-awareness on adolescents' sexual and reproductive health and rights
3. Enhanced governance on adolescent sexual and reproductive health

To fulfil these outcomes, the Facility Readiness and Essential Services Availability Assessment and Reporting (FReSAAR) tool for Adolescent Health is needed to assess health facilities, schools and other community establishments, as needed to assess the availability of service providers/human resource and materials, and readiness to provide services to adolescent among these primary care facilities in the regions. This will help evaluate the very basic or essential human resource, equipment, supplies, distance and structure requirements for providing health services. Service Availability refers to the inventory of services in a health facility that is made available and accessible to the public. This also pertains to the physical access to health facilities and services in a well-defined geographic cluster, while Service Readiness refers to the preparedness and capacity of the facility to provide quality health services based on a set of criteria as defined in the regional metadata of indicators and other instruments available from the regional office. Service Readiness will assess the readiness of the present written guidelines, trained staff, equipment, medicines, commodities, and diagnostics in the facility.

Through the FReSAAR tool, primary health care facilities of the project sites will be mapped out in preparation for the Adolescent Care inter-agency service delivery network or the HCPN among adolescent health care providers. This tool was initially piloted in Davao last 2018 as paper-based tool, but due to issues in conducting, collating and analyzing the data, it was eventually converted into a digital version, which was found to be more efficient and effective.

Since each region will have their own specific concerns and resources, WHO, through this project needs to adapt and localize the digitalized FReSAAR to Southern Leyte and Samar. Specifically for the region, this will be limited to adolescent health and will, include reporting, hence, renamed as Facility Readiness and Essential Service Availability Assessment and Reporting for Adolescent Health (FReSAAR) tool. This tool needs to cater to the respective areas to be assessed, including other aspects and indicators each region would wish to further assess, including adding, removing or revising any of those that are not relevant to their region. Aside from the FReSAAR tool, the partner should also be able to formulate health dashboards that will be presented during programme implementation reviews, mainly for health planning purposes.
