

Standard 'Call For Proposals' (CFP)

Human Rights Initiative for access to quality TB services

Introduction and Background

UNOPS has hosted Stop TB Partnership Secretariat as of 1 January 2015. The Stop TB Partnership ("STBP"), under the direction of the Executive Secretary, is leading the way to a world without tuberculosis (TB), a disease that is curable but still kills three people every minute. Founded in 2001, the Partnership's mission is to serve every person who is vulnerable to TB and ensure that high-quality treatment is available to all who need it.

STBP, through this Call for Proposal (CFP), invites proposals from qualified organizations interested in receiving grant support for a project that will map 23 USAID priority countries, to identify where governments are obligated to ensure the human right of access to quality TB services and where those obligations are being met or not. Subsequently the project will develop a series of legal and policy strategies and interventions to bring the human rights commitments of governments and highlight where there is room for improvement in meeting these obligations.

Access to affordable and effective TB services is more than a desirable outcome- in accordance with many national constitutions, regulatory structures and international treaty commitments, it is a basic human right. Many of the 23 USAID priority TB countries have committed to either national or international binding legal obligations to ensure that the entire population has access to quality TB services. While many countries are bound to provide these services, in practice this has not been achieved.

The objective of this CFP is to identify an organization that can map governments' human rights obligations, document human rights linkages and obligations, develop health equity strategies, reform legal frameworks and litigation results for access to quality TB services.

Subsequently the project will develop a series of legal and policy strategies and interventions to bring the human rights commitments of governments and highlight where there is room for improvement in meeting these obligations.

The organization who will undertake the project will work in close collaboration with Stop TB Partnership Secretariat, their partners and stakeholders, in strong coordination with partners engaged in the implementation of the Nairobi Strategy, and will be required to:

1. Partner with the UN Special Rapporteur on the Right to Health - the right of everyone to the enjoyment of the highest attainable standard of physical and mental health - and produce a report on the status of TB in one or more countries/ regions highlighting the degree to which countries are meeting their human rights commitments towards access to quality TB services and commodities. This component will be undertaken after discussion with the Special Rapporteur.
2. Develop guidance on national health equity strategies to address needs and barriers of different marginalized populations, including with respect to access to TB services as needed (with the strategies identifying the marginalized groups, the causes and extent of inequities for each population including mechanisms to ensure accountability and participation, propose solutions to reduce and eliminate inequities), and identify countries and local partners best positioned to engage in developing a national health equity strategy;
3. Utilize legal and judicial avenues to protect the rights of migrants by working with local advocates and push for expanded access to quality TB services at the national and sub national level by upholding the government's obligations under the right to health, (which prohibits any level of discrimination against migrants regardless of their legal status);
4. Pursue litigation and other legal strategies through partner organizations to protect of the rights of prisoners to receive adequate medical services, including access to quality TB prevention and treatment services.

The expected duration of the project is for one year starting.
